Gunpowder China - an unfermented, green tea

Gunpowder tea was so called due to the rolled, curled leaves resembling gunpowder from the past. When brewed, the leaves unfurl and show the leaf as it was when picked. This pale, clear tea takes 3 - 4 minutes to brew.

Formosa Oolong - a delicate, smooth, peachy taste

This tea is from a specific type of tea plant grown in Taiwan. It is 50% fermented, then allowed to wilt in the sun. This gives the peachy character to the tea.
